Lisbon, September 30.

THE Royal Academy of History assembled the 7th Instant by the King's Order in the Queen's Antichamber, to celebrate the Anniversary of her Majesty's Birth-Day, and Father Don Manoel Cactan de Souza being President for the Day, pronounced an eloquent Discourse in her Majesty's Praise, who on that Occasion was pleased to express her Satisfaction at the breaking up of the Assembly. The Assembly on the 30th past was honoured with the King's Presence: A new Book was distributed there, wrote by Senhor Manoel de Azevedo Fortes, Knight of the Order of Christ, Brigadier in his Majesty's Army, and Chief Engineer of the Kingdom, upon the easiest and most exact Method to make Geographical and Hydrographical Charts; and the Construction of Instruments necessary to Engineers and Sea-Officers. Father Joseph of the Purification, who has undertaken a History of the Military Orders of this Kingdom, communicated afterwards to the Assembly an Historical Catalogue of that of St. Benet d'Avis, instituted in the Year 1140, by Alphonso, First King of Portugal, in Memory of the famous Action at Buros, in which he obtained a complete Victory over the Moorish Army under King Albayach, whom he afterwards drove away from the City of Evora in the Year 1147.

Vienna, Oct. 3. Early this Morning the Electoral Prince of Bavaria arrived here incognito; he alighted at the Bavarian Ambassadors' House, and from thence saw him set out with a numerous and splendid Retinue to his public Audience at the Imperial Court: In the Evening the Prince returned to a Place in the Neighbourhood of this City, from whence he is expected here again to-morrow Morning incognito, to dine with the Empress Dowager and his Spouse the Archduchess at a Monastery a little way out of Town. After which the Electoral Prince is to continue here till the 5th Instant, and then he goes Post to the Palace of the Favorites, where his Marriage is to be consummated at Night. The next Day a fine Opera is to be played, and on the 7th the Prince and his Spouse set out on their Journey to Bavaria, and they dine that Day at Pilsenberg, and lie at Night at Schonbrun, a Seat belonging to the Vice-Chancellor of the Empire; the 8th they dine at Polten, and lie at Night at Moleck at the Prelate's House of that Place; they dine at Emmellen the 9th, and at Night lie at Ems; they dine the 10th at Wels, and lie at Night at Zambuck, the last Place on the Austrian Frontiers. The Occasion of the Prince Don Emanuel of Portugal's going to the Coronation at Rheims, and of the Prince de Schwarzenberg's setting out likewise to Bohemia, is diversely talked of; but the Generality fancy that the Electoral Prince's Arrival and the Ceremonial to be used on that Account, was the chief Cause of their Absence at this Juncture. The Russian Ministers here speak very much of the great Progress the Czar has made in Georgia: they own, however, the Shock that was received at the first landing of the Troops, but give out now, that that Matter is perfectly redressed, and that all the Princes of Georgia have desired the Czar's Protection.

Missei, Archbishop of Athens and Nuncio in Ordinary from the Pope, made his public Entry the 9th in this City: The Prince of Guise and the Chevalier de Saintot Introducer of Ambassadors, went in the King's Coach to receive the Nuncio at the Convent de Picpus, from whence the March was made in the following Order, viz. of Orleans, Duke of Chartres, Princess of Condé, Dutchess Dowager of Bourbon, Duke of Bourbon, Count of Clermont, first Dowager Princess of Conti, second Dowager Princess of Conti, Prince and Princess of Conti, Dutchess of Maine, Count de Toulouse, and that of the Prime Minister; after which at 30 or 40 Paces Distance, followed the Nuncio's four Coaches. Being arrived at his Hotel, he was complimented on the King's Part by the Duke de Villeguier, first Gentleman of his Majesty's Bed-Chamber; on the Part of the Dowager Dutchess of Orleans, by the Marquess du Pourpri, her Grace's first Gentleman of the Horse; on the Part of the Duke of Orleans, by the Chevalier de Conflans, his Royal Highness's first Gentleman of the Chamber; and on the Part of the Dutchess of Orleans, by the Marquess de Saint Pierre, her Grace's first Gentleman of the Chamber. On the 11th Instant the Prince of Guise and the Chevalier de Saintot went to receive the Nuncio at his Hotel and conducted him to Versailles, where he had his first public Audience of the King: He was received at his Entrance to the Out-Court of the Castle by the Companies of French and Swiss Guards, which were drawn up under Arms, the Drums beating: In his Passage to the Inner Court, the Guards belonging to the Gate, and those of the Provost, were also under Arms at their usual Stations, and at the Stairs-Head the Hundred Swiss in their Habits of Ceremony. He was received at the Inside of the Hall Door by the Duke of Harcourt, Captain of the Guards du Corps, drawn up in two Lines under Arms. After Audience had of the King, the Nuncio was conducted by the Chevalier de Saintot to his Audience of the Duke Regent; and being afterwards treated by the King's Officers, he was reconducted to Paris by the Chevalier de Saintot in the same Coach, and with the usual Ceremonies.
